Course Description

Are our actions predetermined? Do we have free will? Does God exist? What else might there be? What are persons? How do I persist through time? What is gender? What are groups?

This course will focus on metaphysical questions like these. By discussing various possible responses to these questions, students will be introduced to a distinctive way of thinking about, presenting, and criticizing arguments and ideas. We will study the philosophical ideas in the readings, determine how the arguments work, and ultimately, see what we think about metaphysical issues surrounding free will, ontology, personhood, and more.

Here is a list of the tutorials, along with their meeting times and locations. Note that these tutorials meet on odd-numbered weeks, starting week 3.

- TD1: Tues 2-3:30pm, AS3-0302.
- TD2: Thurs 2-3:30pm, AS3-0523.

Course Requirements

1. Participation (100 points).
  - Students are expected to ask questions, attend all lectures, and occasionally work together in small groups.
  - See the course website for the rubric which I use to grade participation.
2. Reading comprehension quizzes (10 points each).
  - Due dates: at the start of each class, take a 5 minute reading comprehension quiz on the assigned article.
  - Your lowest quiz grade is dropped and replaced by a 10.
3. Midterm exam (100 points).
  - Due date: Sept 29 at 10am.
  - In-person exam, which consists of writing short papers about selections from readings.
  - A few weeks before Sept 29, a detailed description of this will be posted to the course website.
4. Final exam (100 points).

- Due date: Nov 10 at 10am.
- In-person exam, which consists of writing a single long paper about a selection from a reading.
- A few weeks before Nov 10, a detailed description of this—including instructions for exactly what your paper should do—will be posted to the course website.

Learning outcomes

By this course's conclusion, you should be able to

- explain a variety of metaphysical views,
- extract arguments from readings,
- present views in a fair and charitable manner,
- write clearly, and
- discuss complex philosophical ideas respectfully.

Plagiarism and Academic Integrity

Please adhere to the NUS policies on plagiarism and academic integrity. Penalties for violations of these policies can be severe: they include an automatic failing grade for the course, and possibly worse. A comprehensive overview of these policies can be found here:

Accessibility

This class should be a great, fun, and educational experience for everyone. And of course, everyone deserves equal access to all educational opportunities at NUS. Those with disabilities are encouraged to speak with me if that would be helpful, and to avail themselves of the services provided by the Disability Support Office:
